What is a Brand?

It's more than a logo, a slogan, a mascot or an ad campaign. A brand is an enduring platform that articulates an organization's unique identity and point of view. It helps an organization to connect with many broad, diverse communities through informed and relevant interactions.

At Pitt, our brand focuses on an authentic and memorable platform that captures the beautiful tenacity of our city, which is reflected in the drive of our students. This document defines each component of our brand to illustrate who the University of Pittsburgh is and why we matter to the world. This is how we tell our story.

A Brand Is:
The promise we make to our audiences
The essence of our organization
The experience we create
The personality we convey
The message we deliver
The identity we express

Why Is a Brand Important?

As humans, our opinions form very quickly—and they have a strong influence on the decisions we make. This is why it’s critical for Pitt to have positive and meaningful interactions with our audiences as often as possible. The elements in this document work together to ensure that every interaction conveys a consistent and compelling story about Pitt. The principles apply to all of us and to every interaction and every piece of communication.

This document is designed to help you make decisions in support of our story. There’s a deeply informed rationale to everything included—every visual and verbal decision.

These guidelines reflect the thought process that went into creating the brand and offer direction for making the brand work to help you achieve even greater success.

At Pitt, we seek to engage with a profoundly diverse collection of audiences and individuals. Though the needs of these groups will vary, our brand story should remain consistent. By understanding the objective we’re trying to achieve with each audience, we can bring focus and clarity to our communications and interactions.

Audience Focus: Enrollment

HOW THEY KNOW PITT TODAY

Prospective students and their influencers have an overall positive view of the University. They see Pitt as selective and urban and as a place to get an excellent undergraduate education. Some prospective students and their families wonder about Pitt’s affordability and have questions about the long-term return on investment of a Pitt degree.

POINTS TO EMPHASIZE

• Pitt’s momentum and continual rise in excellence
• How Pitt uniquely prepares students for success
• Outcome stories
• The value of a Pitt degree
HOW THEY KNOW PITT TODAY

Most of the alumni and donors who are aware of the University’s rise to prominence are excited and proud to see where Pitt is going; however, some constituents aren’t aware of this information or haven’t been exposed to it. There’s strong support for individual schools and programs but not broadly across the University.

POINTS TO EMPHASIZE

• The integral role they have in Pitt’s continued rise in prominence
• How the University is building on its historic strengths and improving in other areas
• Clear reasons for why they should reengage with and support the University
• Student stories that showcase the exemplary experience at Pitt
HOW THEY KNOW PITT TODAY

The University has made tremendous strides in recent years to engage these groups, yet there’s still room for improvement. Historically, there has been a disconnect, lack of inclusion, partnership and collaboration. Today, Pitt is making a concerted effort to reengage and partner with the Pittsburgh community as the city’s university.

POINTS TO EMPHASIZE

• The ways Pitt is engaging in the community
• How the city and University build continual momentum for one another
• How individuals can connect with the University and engage in its partnership efforts
The University’s ascent has been noticed by a portion of the broader community, but there remains an overall lack of awareness. For some audiences, Pitt is still seen as a regional institution, and its global impact is still relatively unknown. New partnerships are being formed with businesses, encouraging new, innovative opportunities for collaboration between public and private entities.

POINTS TO EMPHASIZE

- The wide array of opportunities available for partnership
- The impact of the University across industries and around the world
- Stories that highlight remarkable achievements by Pitt graduates
- Pitt’s goals for further ascension and global impact
HOW THEY KNOW PITTS TODAY

With gradual changes in Pitt’s leadership and vision, internal audiences have seen a shift in culture. Today, there is more transparency and more support for new initiatives than ever. There is excitement around this shift, but, at the same time, change brings some anxiety and unrest. Additionally, at an institution as large as Pitt, there will be persistent challenges in connecting all of the University’s stakeholders under a unified message.

POINTS TO EMPHASIZE

• Clarity around Pitt’s vision for the future and how internal audiences have a prominent role in getting there
• The importance of a cohesive and consistent brand story moving forward
• Ways internal audiences can share ideas and accomplishments to promote pride in the University
• The value of a Pitt degree
The following ingredients shine through our content in tone, style and topic as well as how we look and feel in the market.

Innovator
- Brilliant and transformative, driven by inventing the future through innovation
- Delivers advancement, ingenuity and radical outcomes
- Values newness, experimentation and invention
- Causes people to feel awe and amazement

Leader
- Powerful and assertive, driven by growth and being an industry leader
- Delivers stability, pride and strength
- Values power, influence and accomplishment
- Causes people to feel confident and in control

Discoverer
- Adventurous and inquisitive, driven by the quest to discover the unknown
- Delivers progress and a thirst for knowledge and exploration
- Values investigation, curiosity and trailblazing
- Causes people to feel empowered and enlightened
Positioning is how we want to be thought of in the minds of our most important audiences. It’s not what we are or how we express it; it’s about what we want people to remember when they walk away.

WHO
The University of Pittsburgh community

WHAT
is fueled by preeminent leaders, educators, thinkers, learners and healers

HOW
who are challenging the conventional frontiers of knowledge

WHY
to build a better future for humankind.

Progress never comes from standing still.

Reinvention:

Progress never comes from standing still.
This section covers our tone, brand personality and creative platform. Here, you’ll learn how these elements can make your writing more strategic, more effective and more compelling. In the simplest terms, our message is what we say and our voice is how we say it. It’s through our tone—informed by our brand personality traits and based on our creative platform—that our voice takes shape, expressing who we are in a way that feels unmistakably like Pitt.

Since 1787, we’ve never stopped pushing the edge of what’s possible. We were forged in the spirit of progress and the thrill of the unknown. And more than 200 years later, we’re still driven by the search—by the rush that comes from connecting dots and seeing ideas converge, then finding more dots and seeking newer ideas.

We thrive in forging new paths to mold better futures, embracing each setback as fuel for something greater. Because at our core, we’re focused on human impact and the relentless pursuit of change for good.

That’s why the goal of our work has always been to keep working—to question the answers; and to never, ever stop reinventing.

Here, progress is always in progress.
This is the University of Pittsburgh.

Forge Ahead.
While our brand does not have an official tagline, “Forge Ahead” is an important hook that conveys the ethos of who we are as an institution. Be careful, however, not to lead with this phrase in every instance. See page 16 for headline constructions that will keep our messaging fresh and compelling.

HELPFUL HINT

Since 1787, we’ve never stopped pushing the edge of what’s possible.

Since our founding, we have never stood still. We were forged in progress and continue to forge it constantly to this day.

We were forged in the spirit of progress and the thrill of the unknown. And more than 200 years later, we’re still driven by the search—by the rush that comes from connecting dots and seeing ideas converge, then finding more dots and seeking newer ideas.

We thrive in forging new paths to mold better futures, embracing each setback as fuel for something greater. Because at our core, we’re focused on human impact and the relentless pursuit of change for good.

That’s why the goal of our work has always been to keep working—to answer the questions; to question the answers; and to never, ever stop reinventing.

Here, progress is always in progress. This is the University of Pittsburgh.

Here, the process of reinvention never ends. Our work is never finished because we will always have problems to solve, and we’re always on to the next.

As a university, we don’t shy away from hard work; we’re called to tackle challenges head on. So that we can shape a better future for humankind, we will always forge ahead.

We do what we do because we want to change the world for the better. We’re driven by the idea of finding solutions, and no setback or challenge ever slows us down.

We’re guided by our pioneering spirit—chasing every discovery only to begin chasing the next.

Forge Ahead.
Voice and Tone

Own It

Voice gives our campaigns and communications a recognizable style—one that’s true to who we are. It’s also how we can convey our ethos of forging ahead thoughtfully. Keep these tips in mind to make sure that we’re all writing with the same voice.

Be confident but not arrogant. We’re a top institution. That means we’ve earned the right to make compelling statements that showcase our talent and acumen—but that doesn’t mean we should be, or need to be, unnecessarily boastful.

Be tenacious but not scrappy. Because tenacity is in our DNA, our copy should reflect how we continually move forward, regardless of setbacks. It should never come across as scrappy or unintentional but instead should demonstrate, at all times, the finesse with which we do things.

Be future focused but not lofty. We’re here to move forward (some might say “Forge Ahead”), so messaging should reflect that momentum, even aspirationally when appropriate. It’s essential, however, to ground our aspiration and ambition in a way that feels attainable with our vast resources.

Be grounded in history but not bound by it. We’re defined by our legacy, but we’re not tethered to it.
Voice and Tone

Writing Frameworks

When writing headlines, we want to invoke the feeling and meaning of “Forge Ahead” without always saying it. To help you create messages that are fresh and compelling, we’ve established several frameworks that will help you to write strong and effective headlines. These examples are neither comprehensive nor restrictive; rather, they serve as an easy way to get started using the Pitt voice.

(What we do/Who we are) + Forge Ahead

We can use “Forge Ahead” as a payoff in headlines, turning it into a powerful call to action. Whether it’s a barrier that needs to be broken, a limit to be pushed or the reason we make an impact, we don’t stop there. We always forge ahead.

Forged in (trait/noun)

We can use the past tense of “forge” to talk about what our purpose is and who we are as an institution. While we’re always forging ahead, this construction allows us to highlight what we’re made of and why our mission is important.

Bold Statement + Payoff

Our brand platform is active and compelling. By leading with a bold statement and then using a payoff that ties back to who we are as an institution, we hook readers in, showing them that we’re always onto the next discovery.

Alluding to Momentum

“Forge Ahead” conveys our momentum as an institution as well as our ability to never stand still. By using other phrases and words that allude to this idea without explicitly saying it, we can keep the attention of our audience while still delivering our message.

HELPFUL HINT

WORDS LIKE “FORGE”

Another way to keep our language fresh is to use other action verbs that convey the same sense of forward momentum and impact. Here are some examples:

Make
Build
Mold
Pursue
Drive
Improve
Inspire
Push
Launch

EXAMPLES

* Nonstop since 1787. Forge Ahead.
* Driven by discovery. Forge Ahead.
* Never stand still. Forge Ahead.
* Find the edge of what’s possible. Forge Ahead.

EXAMPLES

* Forged in inquiry.
* Forged in progress.
* Forged in curiosity.
* Forged in invention.

EXAMPLES

* Reinvention never stops. Neither do we.
* Stand on the shoulders of revolutionaries. See how far you can see.
* There will always be questions to answer. That’s why our work never stops.
* Driven by the search. Inspired by the impact.

EXAMPLES

* The process of reinvention never stops.
* Keep making history and you’re bound to make the future.
* Progress is always in progress.
* To find the edge and push further

Writing Tips

THREE THINGS TO AIM FOR

✔ Be bold, confident and optimistic.

We have a tendency to shy away from sharing our accomplishments, but it’s possible to own the things we do well without sounding boastful or arrogant. Our messaging should tell the story of Pitt with genuine pride.

✔ Tie hard work to outcomes.

Don’t forget to balance our new confidence with the benefits of our strong work ethic. We can make bold, impressive claims because we’ve put in the work.

✔ Show, don’t tell.

Whenever possible, give concrete examples. It’s more powerful to show experiences through storytelling and first-person narratives than it is to explain experiences in depth.

THREE THINGS TO WATCH OUT FOR

❌ Avoid clichés.

There are so many distinctive and compelling things about Pitt; trite phrases will only dilute our messages. Use the messaging map to highlight a unique benefit and find a unique way to tell the world about Pitt.

❌ Don’t be afraid to commit.

In the past, we determined who we were by what we weren’t. We were neither this nor that. Today, we want to proudly declare who we are and what we stand for.

❌ Don’t forget our past, but don’t rely on it.

It’s okay to refer to our history and to the legitimacy it gives us, but don’t let it define us. This also applies to using statistics and numbers. They’re important but only when we show how they move us forward and inform where we’re going next.
This section contains guidance for using our logos. They represent Pitt to the outside world, helping to identify and unify our brand. Because our visual identity represents the University at the very highest level, it’s vital to our brand. These logos act as a signature, an identifier and a stamp of quality, and they should always be the most consistent component in our communications.
Institutional Identity

Institutional Mark

Whenever possible, use the preferred full-color version of the institutional mark.

Registered Marks

Use of the “circle R” or ® mark by service mark or trademark owners clearly communicates that the mark has been officially registered and is in good standing with the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. Registering a service mark or trademark prevents others from using the mark and enables the owner to sue for trademark infringement. The Pitt word mark, institutional mark (shield and signature) and shield have been registered and are in good standing with the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office.

It is appropriate—but not required by law and not always necessary—to use a mark with a circle R in your marketing materials. Both versions of the marks—with and without the circle R—are correct, however:

• Using a mark with the circle R is preferred whenever possible and practical. It may not be practical to include the circle R in a magazine flag (masthead) or on wall art or signage, for example.
• Using a mark with the circle R is required when the mark is being applied to an advertising specialty item being produced by a University-approved licensee.

The Office of University Communications and Marketing can provide the appropriate mark for your application. Please complete a marketing project request.
Institutional Identity

Colors Permitted

Full Color (three-color version)
Whenever possible, use the full-color version. Pantone CMYK and RGB versions exist, so use the one that’s most appropriate for the application.

Pitt Royal, White and Pitt Gold (three-color version)

PREFERRED MARK

Pitt Royal and Pitt Gold (three-color version)
Note the white fill within the shield of the three-color version of the logo. This fill does not appear in other color versions.

Reversed and Pitt Gold (two-color reversed version)
When the logo appears on a background of Pitt Royal, use the reverse two-color version that incorporates Pitt Gold.

One Color
In cases where color limitations exist, use a one-color option.

Pitt Royal
Black
Reversed (white)
To ensure consistent use of the logo, here are some practices to avoid. In addition to the uses below, it is important not to rotate the Institutional mark on its side.

Incorrect Uses

- Don't skew or bend the logo in any way.
- Don't rotate the logo.
- Don't stretch the logo.
- Don't use any colors other than those specified in this document.
- Don't outline the logo.
- Don't add elements to the logo.
- Don't use drop shadows or other visual effects.
- Don't use the logo on a background with insufficient contrast.
- Don't rearrange the elements of the logo.
Institutional Identity

Spacing and Size

Clear Space
We ensure that other elements don’t compete with the logo by allowing a minimum amount of space around the perimeter, measured with the height of the “P” in Pittsburgh. This applies to all versions of the logo except in cases of subbranding with schools, centers, institutes and departments. Please refer to the subbranding guide beginning on page 48.

Minimum Sizes
Refer to these minimum sizes when creating designs to ensure that the logo’s details don’t get lost. When the institutional mark is used at a small size, it should never appear with subbranding. It must stand alone.

When using a subbrand mark (with a school, department, center or institute), the minimum size of the shield and signature must be at least 1.75” wide (on either version of the mark: with a rule or with type stacked below).
Institutional Identity

Shield Only

Use the shield only as a decorative element in communications with audiences who are already familiar with the University of Pittsburgh. The same rules for color, spacing and application apply to this as outlined for the full logo. When using the shield for merchandise, a special type setup and type proportions have been established. Please submit designs to the assistant athletic director, licensing and brand management at burens@athletics.pitt.edu or contact the Office of University Communications and Marketing.

Due to accessibility concerns, the shield was intentionally not created in only Pitt Gold.
Institutional Identity

University Seal

The University seal is reserved for official institutional documents, such as diplomas and some commencement materials. Any exceptions to this rule must be approved by the Office of University Communications and Marketing.

Full Color

Note that the University seal colors have been refreshed to align with the University's athletics colors.

When it’s used thoughtfully, typography becomes a powerful brand tool that can add visual meaning to what we say. Pitt’s typography communicates clearly and cleanly, with enough flexibility for a wide range of situations.

Forge Ahead.
Line spacing, called leading, is critical to setting professional-looking type that’s easy to read. Leading should be set tight but not too tight. With our typefaces, text generally looks best with leading set slightly looser than the default.

Leading that’s too loose leaves too much pause between lines.

- 21 pt. type / 36 pt. leading

Leading that’s too tight leaves too little pause between lines.

- 21 pt. type / 18 pt. leading

When leading is correct, the reader won’t even notice.

- 21 pt. type / 23 pt. leading

HELPFUL HINT

Start with leading that’s two points higher than the point size of the text. This won’t always be right, but leading can be adjusted most easily from there. Smaller blocks of text may need leading that’s slightly more open.
Typography
Leading for Headlines

While the same general leading rules for body copy apply to headlines, leading for headlines will usually be a little tighter. This is because our headlines are typically shorter and in a bold block typeface or in all caps. Headlines set at smaller sizes may need more leading than headlines set at larger sizes. We want to be sure that our headlines can be read quickly and easily, and leading that’s too tight at small point sizes makes this difficult. Trust your eye, not the number. If it looks too tight, it probably is.

HELPFUL HINT

Start with leading that’s three points less than the point size of the headline. Reduce the leading further until you have a headline that reads comfortably and cohesively.

Remember, the examples shown on this page are only guides. Each piece you create will have its own needs and restrictions, so use your best judgment when setting your own headlines.

Tracking for Body Copy

Correct letter spacing, called tracking, also makes the type easier to read. Outside headlines, text should always be tracked close to the default setting, and optical kerning should be used when available. When working with type, always take the time to make these adjustments. These details make us look professional and greatly improve the readability of our type.

HELPFUL HINT

Trust your eye. The best tracking for typefaces varies. What may work for some typefaces may not work for others.

The size and weight of the typeface also can influence how much tracking is necessary. Smaller sizes and heavier weights may need more.

Tracking that is too loose leaves too much space between letters.

- +130 tracking

Tracking that's too tight leaves too little space between letters.

- -75 tracking

When tracking is correct, the reader won’t even notice.

- 0 tracking, optical kerning
Due to the tight, blocky nature of our headline typefaces, we need to pay extra attention to tracking when setting headlines. We want our letters to be snug but not so tight that they touch. Too much tracking makes it harder to read the text quickly. While it’s useful to set tracking for entire lines, sometimes the space between two letters becomes too much. Manually adjust this space using kerning.

HELPFUL HINT

Trust your eye. The best tracking for typefaces varies. What may work for some typefaces may not work for others.

The size and weight of the typeface also can influence how much tracking is necessary. Smaller sizes and heavier weights may need more.

Secondary Palette (Neutral Colors) 43
Accent Palette 44
Palette Flexibility 46
A robust color palette provides many design options, but we must exercise thoughtful consideration and restraint to make sure we don’t lose our visual identity. Here’s a general guide for making effective choices as you use color in compositions. This isn’t meant to imply a strict mathematical distribution of the colors on the page; rather, these ratios should help your layout to pass a squint test.

Beyond our logo, color is the most recognizable aspect of our brand identity. Colors have been selected that reflect our bold, diverse community. Using color appropriately is one of the easiest ways to make sure our materials reflect a cohesive Pitt brand.

Our color palette is made up of primary, secondary and accent colors. Communication materials should emphasize the primary palette first but also use the secondary and accent palettes to keep layouts and communications from becoming stale and one-dimensional.

HELPFUL HINT

When using color builds, always use the color values listed on the following pages. They have been adjusted for the best reproduction on screen and in print and may not match Pantone Color Bridge breakdowns.
Our primary colors are Pitt Royal and Pitt Gold. Layouts should lean heavily on these colors, mixing in the other palettes for color schemes that are complementary and balanced.

Dark Blue, Medium Blue and Dark Gold are legacy colors that speak to our blue and gold history. Turn to these colors along with black, white and grays for more formal communications.

Whenever possible, use the primary colors as the dominant scheme for all print materials and digital communications.
Color

Secondary Palette
(Neutral Colors)

These neutral hues pair perfectly with the primary and the secondary (legacy) palettes. Due to their subdued nature, overpowering the primary set is less of a concern. Use them as supplementary or secondary colors rather than as dominant colors in layouts and materials.
Although our primary palette along with secondary palettes should lead in most materials, some instances require additional options. For those instances, we have the accent palette. In general, these colors should be used sparingly, but they can be more prominent in some instances, such as communications about internal campus events and one-off impact pieces. When using the accent palette without the primary palette for a time-limited mark or logo or for a special University initiative, permission must be obtained from the Office of University Communications and Marketing. The PMS 3288 (Deep Teal) is used on materials related to Pitt sustainability.

Use this palette to add a bright, energetic feel to designs. While this palette also should be used sparingly, it can lend itself to more casual pieces and student-facing pieces like admissions materials. PMS 367 (Light Green) is used on materials related to Pitt sustainability.
Color

Palette Flexibility

This diagram is a guide for the overall mood or tone of our communications. The components of our palettes can range from sophisticated to casual and from subdued to vibrant. Use this chart as a starting point to choose a set of colors that projects the right mood for your piece.

HELPFUL HINT

There’s no mathematical formula to determine where colors are plotted on this chart; this type of interpretation is highly subjective. Use these connotations as an introductory guide and customize your palette based on your audience, intent and medium.
To strike the right balance of color for a desired effect, use these spectra as a guide. This is not a precise mathematical system but an idea of relative use. Color groupings can range from formal to casual and from subtle to bold, depending on the purpose and audience of the piece. The diagrams below illustrate how we might distribute colors proportionally to generate the desired mood. Of course, this doesn't mean that we need to use every color in our palette to fulfill the requirements of the brand.

At a minimum, we always lead with the primary palette.

Institutional Mark

The Institutional Mark (shield and signature) is the preferred identity for the University of Pittsburgh. The mark is available as a three-color version (Pitt Royal and Pitt Gold with a white shield, as shown), in a reverse two-color white type option and as a single-color mark in Pitt Royal or black. The Institutional Mark may appear only in these colorways. See page 20 for more information and examples of acceptable colorways available for use. Whenever possible, use the marks that include the circle R (®).

Word Mark

The Wordmark is an informal mark and may be used in place of the Institutional Mark in promotional materials. It is designed for audiences that are already familiar with the University as well as for internal audiences. The Word Mark should never appear with the University shield or seal. That use is restricted to Pitt Alumni Association (see Appendix D). No other unit should combine the informal wordmark and the shield.

The Wordmark may be combined with unit names (see examples on pages 55 and 56). These informal unit marks are modified versions of typography with special kerning. DO NOT ATTEMPT TO CREATE YOUR OWN INFORMAL WORDMARKS BY SETTING TYPE as each is a custom design. Please visit communications.pitt.edu/marketing/submit-marketing-project-request, complete the project request form, and University Communications will create marks for your unit in approved colors.

Athletics or Spirit Mark

The Spirit Mark is the official logo of University of Pittsburgh athletics teams and a registered mark of the University. Outside athletics, the Script Pitt is used as a nonacademic mark for student organizations, associations (see Appendix A-C), student-centric promotions and some internal communications.

For information on licensing and merchandising for internal use, visit pittsburghpanthers.com/sports/2017/6/17/ot-pitt-licensing-internal-html.

Subbrand Fonts: Cooper Hewitt SemiBold and Book

Cooper Hewitt is the typeface to be used within the subbrand identity architecture in SemiBold and Book. The benefits of Cooper Hewitt include legibility, flexibility of weight options, accommodation of lengthy labels and stylistic contrast with the Institutional Mark and the Word Mark. Cooper Hewitt Medium is used for the informal word marks.

Temporary logos may be used for a school, department, center or institute name. The use and placement of separate special marks must be approved by the Office of University Communications and Marketing. For anniversaries, the on-brand approach below is recommended.

Note: When using a temporary mark, allow the shield and signature to be the dominant identity by ghosting (or screening) the temporary mark as a part of the main Institutional Mark.

INFORMAL WORDMARK

Informal wordmarks may be used only for local audiences or audiences familiar with the University.

Note: The shield is not to be used with the informal wordmark identity. That use is restricted to the Pitt Alumni Association. See Appendix D of this guide.
Brand/Subbrand Identity

Temporary Graphics/Separate Logos

When units prefer to use a unique graphic to promote internal events or programs, a limited-use graphic is permitted. Separate logos for University units are not permitted unless they are used for internal University audiences.

Time-limited graphics may be used when:
• the primary audiences are faculty, staff and students AND
• nearly all of the promotion occurs on one of the University campuses

Graphics should not be applied to business cards or letterhead. Appropriate uses include, but are not limited to, posters for display on campus, websites for internal audiences and advertisements in The Pitt News and on digital screens on campus. The sponsoring unit’s mark should appear on materials as well. Outside logos may not be used in place of approved University Marks.

Examples of acceptable temporary marks:

- Year of Emotional Well-Being
- Pitt Global

Examples of unacceptable permanent logos:

- University of Pittsburgh Center for Journalism
- PCSW Center for Social Work

Conference/Special Event Sponsor Logos

We recognize that conferences and special events conducted at the University may have sponsors and that inclusion of sponsor logos on signage and in event programs is a common expectation.

Here are some best practices to keep in mind:
• Sponsors want their marks to look their best. Do NOT download or copy sponsor logos from the web. Ask each sponsor to provide the correct mark.
• Ask for vector-based logos (.eps, .ai and some .tif or high-resolution .png files). These files allow designers to scale and edit logos, if needed, depending on the background being used.
• Learn more about choosing the right mark by referencing the decision tree on page 50 of this guide.
• When the sponsorship involves multiple Pitt units, list the units in text (example below). Do not add additional University marks for other units.
• If using the Institutional Mark alongside an outside partner (such as UPMC) where both marks are required, the Pitt Institutional Mark should be placed first, with appropriate clear space applied between marks.
Please do not attempt to create these marks on your own. Contact the Office of University Communications and Marketing and submit a request at communications.pitt.edu. The office will create a mark/marks for your use. Also note that all merchandise using University marks must include the ® and must be approved by contacting the assistant athletic director, licensing and brand management at lburens@athletics.pitt.edu or 412-648-8338.

The Shield is not to be used with informal word marks. Do not change the proportional sizes of the type to the institutional mark.

When University units such as schools, departments, centers or institutes are equal partners in a joint venture or program, only one Institutional Word Mark should be used to represent both units using a type treatment as illustrated below.

Note: The shield is not to be used with the informal word mark. That use is particular to and restricted to the Pitt Alumni Association.

Please do not attempt to create these marks on your own. Contact the Office of University Communications and Marketing and submit a request at communications.pitt.edu. The office will create a mark/marks for your use.
The Institutional Mark and address set-up below can be used for postcard return information, the reverse side of brochures or pamphlets or an envelope return address. Do not attempt to create these on your own. Please contact the Office of University Communications and Marketing at 412-624-4147 with any questions related to size and proportion, or visit communications.pitt.edu to submit a request to have this setup created for you.

Note: Regional campuses should follow the same setup, allowing equal space between campus name and school/office/department as between school/office and the address lines.

Typefont for school/office/department should be set in Cooper Hewitt Semibold and school/office should be set in Cooper Hewitt Book.
The word mark may be used as informal University identity for internal audiences. We encourage the use of the institutional mark for promotional and recruitment materials and websites. Do not attempt to typeset these marks, as the kerning and weight of the letterforms have been modified. If marks for your unit are not among the downloadable marks on the brand site, please fill out a marketing request and the Office of University Communications and Marketing will provide them for you.

Graphic Elements

OVERVIEW

Graphic elements make up the framework that ties our brand together visually. Used properly and consistently, they help to ensure that our visual language conveys strength and refinement.
Using textures inspired by Pittsburgh’s urban landscape, we pay homage to the grit and resilience of the Pitt community and the connection to our home city. Make sure the texture doesn’t contrast too heavily against the color over which it is layered. These graphics should be subtle additions that illustrate depth and personality.

All urban textures are available for download on the Pitt brand site at brand.pitt.edu/design/urban-textures.

HELPFUL HINT
Here are a few ways that these textures can be used:

1. As a texture over a solid brand color
2. As an accent texture, overlaid at a smaller scale on a primary color, on white, on a photograph or on a white background within a photograph
3. As a border texture, used in white along the perimeter of a color block or a photograph
Use this graphic element to show the tension and movement between Pitt's history-making achievements and our forward-looking energy. This technique works powerfully with thoughtful photo pairings that show symmetry or reflect historical precedents.

HELPFUL HINT

The edge of connection can be offset (like the example on the left) or aligned (like the example on the right).

Keep making history, and you're bound to make the future.

To find the edge, push further.
These monotone images can be paired with portraits to tell a deeper story or paired with a solid primary color to add depth to backgrounds.

>${\text{Graphic Elements}}$

${\text{Monotone Photo Overlays}}$

${\text{HELPFUL HINT}}$

Here are a couple of ways that these overlays can be used:

1. As a texture laid over a solid primary brand color
2. As an accent with portrait photography, overlaying detail images to help tell a more comprehensive story

Choose only one detail monotone overlay that relates to the person or to the story being told.
Graphic Elements

Monotone and Tritone Textures

HELPFUL HINT

The color in the tritone is a combination of Pitt Royal, PMS 297 and PMS 281. The secondary color can be adjusted slightly to find a hue that creates a monochromatic effect with the image. Once the image is placed in the layout, if there is too much contrast with the background, you can add a low-opacity color block in the gold or blue to even out the color.

How to make duotone or tritone in Photoshop:
Simple lines are used to illustrate movement and connection, adding an elegant element to layouts as they interact with the typography and photography.

Use the arrows as an accent element in the corners of layouts to convey Pitt’s forward momentum.

HELPFUL HINT

The size of these lines can vary depending on the size of the piece being created. The lines should always be solid and lightweight. The lines should always be at an angle and interact with the typography and photography.
We use these small elements as accents to call out a statistic or to show motion and transformation at the edge of a photo.

HELPFUL HINT

These marks can be a great way to bring in the colors of the secondary palette. They should never be the focal point of a layout but rather bring attention to something important on the page such as an image, textures or a headline you want to emphasize.
Photography

Overview and Approach  65
Photo Styles  66
Our approach to photography pulls images from several different categories—defined on the following pages—that work together to tell a fuller story.

Helpful Hint

Try to choose the photos in a section so that they all tell a specific story about a field, program or person rather than a macro story about the University.
The use of portraiture puts a human face on the University. We want to show Pitt students, faculty and staff in the best light, which means capturing them with authenticity—no need for photo effects or heavy editing. When capturing portraits, the focus should be on the individual. Subjects should be facing the camera or looking out of the frame. Capture a look of humility, focus, confidence or seriousness; individuals should never appear aggressive or passive. Each image should have a mostly blurry neutral background or should be shot on a white or light gray background in a studio. Ensure that these shots always feel natural and not staged. In layouts, portraits should be paired with photos from other categories to tell a complete story and shouldn’t be overdone in a publication.

Images in this action-oriented category capture the Pitt work ethic both inside and outside the classroom. Active photographs document individuals, peer-to-peer collaborations and faculty-student interactions. Try to minimize group shots and focus more on individuals who are engaged in an activity or area of study that helps to tell a story. Our students should be shown learning and developing their skills, being mentored by faculty and becoming leaders. And remember, it's important to show a diverse mix of students in our accepting and supportive environment.
Detail photography is a great way to highlight Pitt’s many processes, tools and achievements. The goal here is to capture some of the small things that contribute to a bigger picture. When photographing around campus, it’s always a good idea to zoom in and take a few shots of what makes the composition unique. People can be present, but the focus should be less on the individual and more about what they’re doing or what they’re interacting with at a much closer level. In layouts, these detail images should be paired with other images to tell the full story of process and journey. These also are the type of photos that would be used for the layering monotone treatment shown on page 61.
These textural photos should always be used in series of images that show parts of the process, where they help to tell a more comprehensive story. When treated with a duotone effect, the image should be used as a background. When the photo is in full color, it should only be used as an accent or an inset image. These images should never appear to be the hero image.

The urban vibrancy of Pitt’s campus is something to show off, and these images paint the picture of what our campus community looks like. Pepper these “sense of place” shots throughout communications in a way that helps the layouts to breathe. Using shots of unique and beautiful places on our campus is a great way to showcase Pitt’s beautiful campus. Use both interior and exterior places to help tell the story.
Digital Communication

Overview 72
Websites 73
Email 74
Social Media 75
While print and digital channels both have advantages, leaning heavily on digital communication reduces paper waste as well as plastic and chemical waste from discarded printers and toner cartridges.

The COVID-19 pandemic demonstrated that a significant portion of traditional print communication could be produced in a digital format. Going forward, the University is encouraging Pitt community members to consider digital communication whenever possible.

Digital Accessibility

Pitt is committed to ensuring equal access by making its websites and all other electronic and information technology accessible to all users. Learn more about the Electronic Information and Technology Accessibility Policy and explore the tools and training that are available to assist you in creating accessible digital communications on the Office for Diversity, Equity, & Inclusion's Digital Accessibility website at diversity.pitt.edu/disability-access/digital-accessibility.

Favicon

A favicon, also known as a shortcut icon, website icon, tab icon, URL icon or bookmark icon, is a file containing one or more small icons associated with a particular website or web page. The University of Pittsburgh favicon is the institutional mark edited to appear at such a small scale. If you are hosting a University website or software platform, you may download the University of Pittsburgh favicon files. Do not edit or change the favicon. Do not use the favicon for any use other than as an icon for an official University of Pittsburgh (pitt.edu) webpage.
University websites should have a consistent look and feel and should incorporate the University colors, fonts and institutional marks while using strong, single-focused photography and white space for a clean, effective and readable design. It is important to emphasize and reinforce the University’s graphic language over individual schools, departments, centers or institutes. Therefore, outside logos or identifiers other than time-limited marks are not permitted. The University Communications and Marketing web team can partner with you to create your website or can provide templates, training and assistance so you can create an on-brand website. Visit the web section of communications.pitt.edu for web standards, design themes, online web project request forms and more.
Digital Communication

Email

University of Pittsburgh staff and faculty members are encouraged to personalize the following email signature in Arial, size 10, black font. Additions such as graphics, images or quotes are discouraged.

DO NOT ADD UNIVERSITY MARKS TO EMAIL SIGNATURES.

Email Standard Signature Example:

Name
Pronouns: she/her/hers
Title
University of Pittsburgh | Swanson School of Engineering
Department of Chemical Engineering
Street Address
Office Phone Number | Mobile Phone Number (optional)
pitt.edu

You also may want to include the name pronunciation tool NameCoach.

Email Newsletters

The Office of University Communications and Marketing uses Campaign Monitor to create on-brand e-newsletters. The office has a standardized approach that is visually effective, accessible and easily replicated on other email platforms. It includes the institutional mark and the unit name in text.

To request Campaign Monitor email services, submit an Email Newsletters/Campaign Monitor request using the online form at communications.pitt.edu.

To request a newsletter header in this format for email platforms other than Campaign Monitor, submit a marketing request using the form at communications.pitt.edu.

Please note that the newsletter header is not a subbrand mark and should not be used as identity on other communications collateral.

Email Banner Examples:

Note: As much as possible, when inserting images in email newsletters or announcements, limit the use of University marks as part of the image. The University identity is generally already in the header or email banner.
Digital Communication

Social Media

Best practices to keep in mind when designing for social media:

Limit text to the essentials
• Generally, text should be large and kept to a minimum, as social media are often viewed in smaller devices such as phones or tablets.
• Graphics are primarily used to catch people’s attention.
• Let the post carry the weight of the message.
• Keep it simple: who, what, when, where.
• More often than not, all that is needed is the headline.

Dark backgrounds perform better
• Data show that people are more likely to see and engage with graphics that have a dark background.

Think about the audience
• Who is the target demographic?
• Use the platforms that are most likely to reach the target audience.

Stay on top of trends
• The best way to get a feel for designing for social is to use it.
• Look at websites that provide social media design services for a snapshot of what is popular.
  • canva.com
  • adobe.com/express

Avatars

To maintain a consistent look and feel across all University social media accounts, use avatars that correctly incorporate the shield or the Script Pitt. There are three available options using either University mark.

Logo Use for Schools, Departments, Centers, Programs and Institutes

Guidelines for use of University logos on merchandise and apparel

The University's institutional marks (Shield and Signature or Shield only) are the preferred marks for use on merchandise for all academic units. Informal word marks also are permitted for merchandise for students, alumni or groups familiar with the University. External-facing merchandise should use institutional marks, as external audiences may not be familiar with the University's informal "Pitt" mark. Logos other than approved University brand marks for individual schools, departments, centers or institutes are discouraged, and their use diminishes the University brand. Exceptions are made for anniversary celebration marks, special event marks, temporary program or initiative marks—those that are intended for a limited period of time. For use of University marks by Pitt student organizations, including use of the spirit mark (Script Pitt), refer to the Student Guide Logo Use in the appendices at the end of this document. The Pitt Alumni Association has its own identity system based on the institutional identity (see Appendix D).

- Institutional marks on merchandise may only appear in Pitt Royal (PMS 661C) and Pitt Gold (PMS 1235C), Gold (PMS 125C), black or white. No other color combinations are permitted unless approved by the assistant athletic director, licensing and brand management (see Permitted Shield and Signature Colors).
- It is permissible to use type treatment on merchandise; however, it must not be used with or in place of approved University marks.
- A University logo cannot be manipulated in any way, including but not limited to turning it on its side. No graphic may cover, clutter or take away from a University logo.
- When more than one academic unit is partnering with another, only one institutional mark can appear on merchandise.
- It is permissible to use a type treatment to emphasize your school, department, center, institute or program. A type treatment may not be used with, adjacent to or in place of an approved University mark or subbrand mark.

Approval Process for All Merchandising

To protect the intellectual property, branding and traditions of the University of Pittsburgh, the assistant athletic director, licensing and brand management reviews all products bearing University of Pittsburgh trademarks and logos. All such merchandise must be produced by a licensed vendor with Collegiate Licensing Company (CLC). Such vendors have access to the University of Pittsburgh's trademarks and logos, have been vetted for product quality and have sufficient product liability insurance in the event of a defect. All licensed vendors are required to comply with fair labor codes.

For more information, visit pittsburghpanthers.com/sports/2017/6/17/ot-pitt-licensing-html.aspx?id=98 or contact the assistant athletic director, licensing and brand management, at lburens@athletics.pitt.edu or 412-648-8338.
Merchandise

Logo and Type Proportions

The type font to be used with University marks must be Cooper Hewitt Book (Arial Regular may be substituted if Cooper Hewitt is unavailable from your supplier). The type must appear as Black, PMS 661 (Royal), PMS 1235 (Gold), or White (if on a dark background) and be centered under the University marks. The type should appear as both capital and lowercase letters.

Note: If your supplier does not provide design services and you need assistance in creating your student organization mark, please contact the Office of University Communications and Marketing by filling out a project request form at communications.pitt.edu and a communications manager will contact you. The Office of University Communications and Marketing does not create unique logos and will only provide University brand-compliant marks using Script Pitt or the institutional mark.

Only University-approved vendors may be used for merchandise and apparel orders. Contact the Pitt licensing office for more information and the approval of your order.

What’s not permitted

- Not permitted: placement of a University mark on the same surface as another different University mark
- Not permitted: placement of the University seal on any merchandise, including clothing
- Not permitted: creation or placement of separate marks other than approved University marks that represent academic units of the University
- Not permitted: placement of the University seal on any merchandise, including clothing; shield only or shield and signature are permitted
We’ve broken down every piece of our brand, but it’s the combination of all these elements that makes the brand real. This is how we go from a set of guidelines to a living, breathing Pitt brand.

Script Pitt Logo Usage

The Script Pitt creates a unique association with and is a registered trademark of the University of Pittsburgh. Because the Script Pitt represents our identity, guidelines are necessary to maintain the integrity, consistency and value of the Pitt brand. While the Script Pitt is primarily used by Pitt's Department of Athletics, limited use also is permitted for schools, departments, centers, institutes and regional campuses.

Permitted Logos and Palette
The color palette is an essential component of the Script Pitt, and consistent usage of the palette helps protect and strengthen the brand. The Script Pitt may only appear in the colors below:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Pitt Royal</th>
<th>Pitt Gold</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Pantone 661 C</td>
<td>Pantone 1235 C</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Script Pitt—Two Color Preferred
The Script Pitt can only be used in the color variations shown below. Do not remove the outline from the two-color marks. Marks without outline are available for download.

Script Pitt—One Color without Outline
The Script Pitt can only be used in the color variations shown below.

Permitted Uses

Print and Digital
Administrative and nonacademic units may use the Script Pitt in print and digital communications (e.g., flyers, posters, newsletters, banners, event signage, table tents) that have a direct association with activities conducted in the ordinary course of University business, subject to the restrictions on use set forth below.

All other uses of the Script Pitt must be preapproved by the Office of University Communications and Marketing. Do not begin artwork until the request is approved. Requests may be submitted at communications.pitt.edu/marketing.

Merchandising
The Script Pitt may appear on merchandise as a stand-alone mark or combined with a regional campus, school, department, center or institute. The required font to use with the Script Pitt is Cooper Hewitt Book and must appear centered under the logo.

To protect the intellectual property, branding and traditions of the University of Pittsburgh, the assistant athletic director, licensing and brand management reviews all products bearing University of Pittsburgh trademarks and logos, including the Script Pitt. All such merchandise must be produced by a vendor licensed with Collegiate Licensing Company (CLC). Such vendors have access to the University of Pittsburgh’s trademarks and logos, have been vetted for product quality and have sufficient product liability insurance in the event of a defect. All licensed vendors are required to comply with fair labor codes.

For more information, contact the assistant athletic director, licensing and brand management at lburens@athletics.pitt.edu or 412-648-8338.

Appendix A

Script Pitt and Type Proportions

The type font to be used with University marks for all units is Cooper Hewitt Book. The type must appear as Black, PMS 661 (Blue), or White and be centered under the Script Pitt. The type should appear in initial capital and lowercase letters.

The height of the type should be the same as the bottom of the “t,” and spacing for the unit name under the Script Pitt should also use the same dimension, shown as A.

Note: If two lines of type are required for a unit name, center the unit name below the Script Pitt type with solid leading.

Example: If using 18 pt. type, the leading between the two lines should be set to 19 as well.

Restrictions on Use:

• The Script Pitt must stand alone and may not be combined with any other marks.

• Do not alter or add graphic elements to the logo. Always use approved and provided electronic artwork.

• Do not use the Script Pitt on official University communications (e.g., business cards, stationary, academic journals, diplomas, certificates) or in association with academic-oriented activities or programs.

• Do not use the Script Pitt in connection with alcohol products, tobacco and other smoking-related products, drug paraphernalia, sexually explicit material, weapons or gambling-associated materials.

• Do not use the Script Pitt in any manner that suggests or implies the University of Pittsburgh’s support or endorsement of third-party organizations, viewpoints, products or services.

Student Organizations Identity Guide

Guidelines for Use of University Logos on Merchandise and Apparel

The University's institutional mark (shield and signature) or spirit mark (Script Pitt) may be used only when the organization's name includes one of the following words* on the merchandise: organization, club, council or chapter. For example, an organization's name could appear under the Script Pitt as "Keep It Real Club."

- Script Pitt marks may only appear in Pitt Royal (PMS 661C) and Pitt Gold (PMS 1235C). No other color combinations are permitted unless approved by the assistant athletic director, licensing and brand management. The University shield may only appear in three-color, blue, white, and black or a 2-color white with gold (see Permitted Shield Palette on page 91).
- Student organizations may have independent logos, but they may not incorporate the University marks, trademarks or word marks.
- A University logo cannot be manipulated in any way, including, but not limited to, turning it on its side. No graphic may cover, clutter or take away from a University logo.
- All merchandise and apparel must be submitted for approval by the officially licensed vendor to the Office of Trademark Licensing.

Approval Process for All Merchandising

To protect the intellectual property, branding and traditions of the University of Pittsburgh, the assistant athletic director, licensing and brand management reviews all products bearing University of Pittsburgh trademarks and logos. All such merchandise must be produced by a vendor licensed with College Licensing Company. Such vendors have access to the University of Pittsburgh's trademarks and logos, have been vetted for product quality and have sufficient product liability insurance in the event of a defect. All licensed vendors are required to comply with fair labor codes. For more information, visit pittsburghpanthers.com/sports/2017/6/17/ot-pitt-licensing-html.aspx?id=98 or contact the assistant athletic director, licensing and brand management at ljurens@athletics.pitt.edu or 412-648-8338.

Logo Placement Options for Registered Student Organization on Merchandise and Apparel

Option 1: Primary placement of student organization name or logo with Script Pitt

Option 2: Primary placement of student organization name or logo with shield or institutional mark

A student organization logo may not be used with or near the Script Pitt or the institutional mark. A student organization may use the Script Pitt or the Institutional mark as illustrated in the examples below.
Appendix B

Logo and Type Proportions for Merchandise

The type font to be used with University marks must be Cooper Hewitt Book (Arial Regular may be substituted if Cooper Hewitt is unavailable from your supplier). The type must appear as Black, PMS 661 (Royal), PMS 1235 (Gold) or White (if on a dark background), and be centered under the University marks. The type should appear as all capital and lowercase letters.

Note: If your supplier does not provide design services and you need assistance in creating your student organization mark, please contact the Office of University Communications and Marketing by filling out a project request form at communications.pitt.edu and a communications manager will contact you. The Office of University Communications and Marketing does not create unique logos and will only provide University brand-compliant marks using the Script Pitt or the institutional mark.

Only University-approved vendors may be used for merchandise and apparel orders. Contact the Pitt licensing office for more information and for approval of your order.

The distance of the organization name below the shield is determined by the size of the center of the shield (in this version, the yellow band), shown as B.

The size of the Script Pitt determines the height of the capital letters of the organization name. Type size should not be larger than the height of the bottom of the “t” in Pitt, shown as A.

Pitt Club Sports

Pitt Club Sports (PCS) are governed and administered by the Division of Student Affairs. The Club Sports Program is dedicated to providing undergraduate and graduate students with opportunities for participation in a wide variety of competitive, recreational, and instructional sports activities. While Pitt Club Sports may compete against other universities and colleges, they are not varsity sports and must distinguish themselves from the University of Pittsburgh’s varsity sports program.

Team Naming for Uniforms, Apparel, and Social Media etc.

When referencing a Pitt Club Sport on social media or other publication, or when naming on uniforms and apparel, it must be clear that the team is a club sport in order to distinguish between club and varsity sports. Team names must include “Club” in their name or refer to the club team “at Pitt” or “at the University of Pittsburgh.” For example, “Pitt Women’s Ice Hockey Club” or “Women’s Ice Hockey Club at Pitt” or “Women’s Ice Hockey Club at the University of Pittsburgh.”

Alumni Identity Guide Color

It’s important to have a versatile logo system that can accommodate a range of applications. To account for this, a number of color options have been created.

Full Color
Whenever possible, default to the full-color versions. Pantone, CMYK and RGB versions exist, so use the one that’s most appropriate for the application.

One Color
In cases where color limitations exist, use a one-color option.

Alumni Identity Guide Construction

In our identity system, consistency is key to overall brand recognition. Each official alumni network should use only the approved and supplied version of its lockup. Only the network typography shown here is permitted to be locked up with the alumni logo. Whenever you are communicating to more than one alumni audience (or network), use the everyday (universal) or promotional logos.

Horizontal

Use these structure templates for creating consistent lockups that maintain the identity’s hierarchy while giving networks a clear connection to the association.

Vertical

Note: Editable Illustrator (vector) files are provided so that all of the network logos can be easily produced.
Everyday Formal Promotional

Apply the identity architecture in a considered way to a variety of communication tools and objects.

Alumni Identity Guide Overview

The Pitt Alumni Association identity system is a flexible collection of logos that represents the University and creates a distinct presence while living in the world of the institutional master and athletic brands. It authentically represents Pitt Alumni’s past, present and future in marketing and communications.

Notes on Our Inspiration: You

The alumni community and staff of the University of Pittsburgh want to continue the sense of pride and connection that exists through the association. The prestige that comes from being a Pitt alum is captured in our identity system.

The professional connections made by being a member of the alumni association are its main benefit. We will continue to instill the traits of innovation, impactfulness and visionary ideas coming to life. We’re also fun, and our identity has an opportunity to show that.

Primary Identifier

These are a set of custom logos inspired by the evolved institutional mark that elevates and expresses an inclusive signature for all Pitt alumni while bringing sophistication and excellence to the forefront.

Spirit Identifier

This singular logo lockup introduces athletic branding into the alumni identity system for audiences familiar with the institutional brand. It should be used only for spirit or promotional merchandise.
Appendix D
Alumni Identity Guide System

The Pitt Alumni identity provides consistent identification while also building in appropriate flexibility for different audiences and applications.

Please note: The Pitt Alumni Association has adopted the use of the shield with the informal wordmark as its official identity. This is a proprietary and special mark treatment for Pitt Alumni alone. Academic units must use the shield and signature, subbrand or informal wordmarks.

Other than Pitt Alumni, informal marks must never include the shield as part of their identity. This applies to all other University units, including schools, departments, centers and institutes.
